Re: Letter of Recommendation On Behalf of Nelson Wax

To Whom It May Concern:

It is with great enthusiasm that I recommend Nelson Wax for employment at your organization. I have had the pleasure of knowing Nelson through my firm's employment of him during the past 2 years. Based upon my observations and impressions of Nelson and numerous discussions that I have had with him concerning his education and his goals for the future, I believe that he will be a valuable asset to the organization that is fortunate enough to employ him.

Nelson is a personable and responsible young man, who is serious about his role and performance in the environment in which he is participating. As a consultant for our company, Nelson was interested not only in knowing the significance and parameters of the particular tasks he undertook, but also how those tasks related to the ongoing operations of the company. He became familiar with the entire flow of our operation, from advertising to lead origination, to manufacturing and shipping. He approached his consulting responsibilities with care and professionalism, and was able to manage his workload and meet deadlines without any difficulty, even if that meant working late.

During his consulting, Nelson also proved to be very creative, and was instrumental in creating a variety of promotional and information pieces that we used in a major trade show.

To do this, Nelson had to learn about the range of products that we were educating the cardiology field about at the trade show. The independence Nelson demonstrated during this project, coupled with his responsibility towards his work, desire to succeed in his endeavors, and his perseverance to “get the task done” provide a strong foundation for him to strive for and achieve success at your organization.

In sum, I wholeheartedly recommend Nelson Wax for a position within your organization. Based on what I have observed of Nelson in our office environment, if his approach for you is anything like his approach to work for us was, I am sure that he will be an excellent and motivated asset, and I am sure that down the road, he will make a valuable contribution to your organization.

Sincerely,

ROZINN ELECTRONICS, INC.
